For conspicuous gallantry and devotion to duty. He personally reconnoitred the sector to which his company had been guided, and discovered that an important position, which was reported to be held by us, was actually in the hands of the enemy. He then took steps to safeguard his flank. This reconnaissance was made on a dark night under the most difficult conditions.

It was owing to this officer's report, and to that of another officer sent out by him, that a serious situation a contemplated operation was avoided. Received on 2 March 1918.

: 30561, 5/3/18, 2939 – MC statement – For conspicuous gallantry and devotion to duty.

Having made a personal reconnaissance by day under continuous shell fire and sniping, he led his battalion forward at night to the position selected, and the value of his complete reconnaissance was well proved by the ease with which a hostile counter attack was driven off afterwards. By his deliberate and careful inspection of ground an extremely obscure situation was cleared up. He has done similar good work on many previous occasions.

'For conspicuous gallantry and devotion to duty during the operations near Gheluwe from 28th September to 3rd October 1918, throughout which period he set a very inspiring example. He made numerous reconnaissance's of the most forward positions and brought back most necessary information. On 1st October, whilst working his way to a front post, he and his runner came under heavy direct machine-gun fire. The runner was wounded but he managed to pull him into a ditch, bound up his wound, and succeeded in bringing him to the next post, all the time under heavy fire at close range.
